Background:

Catholic Charities of Fairfield County (CCFC) is the largest private provider of social services in the state of Connecticut. We put "faith in action" by providing food and nutrition, immigration, adoption, mental health, affordable housing and family support services to the needy and vulnerable of all faiths throughout the County. In addition to sponsoring the state's two largest inner city soup kitchens, Merton Center in Bridgeport and New Covenant House of Hospitality in Stamford, the agency serves thousands of the elderly each day through its Senior Nutrition Program and manages a network of counseling and family services offices throughout the region. Recently Catholic Charities has partnered with the State and several communities to provide affordable supportive housing for homeless individuals and families. Its programs and services are delivered by a professional staff assisted by hundreds of interfaith volunteers. To learn more visit the Catholic Charities on the web: www.CCfairfield
